Tucson, AZ (July 16, 2008) – The comic western, “Mad, Mad Wagon Party” will return to Old Tucson Studios, Mon. July 21 for four days of shooting. The film, a spoof on the western film genre, stars George Kennedy. Kennedy, who won a best supporting actor Oscar in 1968 for “Cool Hand Luke,” also has been featured in a number of “spoof” films including the Naked Gun series.

The cast and crew will be filming at the park during regular operating hours, offering the public a chance to watch the shoot. “Allowing guests to get a first-hand look at filmmaking is a great feature of Old Tucson Studios,” said Frances Causey, film manager, Old Tucson Studios. “As we work to develop future on-site projects, ensuring the public has every opportunity become immersed in this experience is vitally important to the mission of Old Tucson Studios.”

The film was written and directed by a husband and wife team, Dwight and Donna Brooks.
